CRITICAL HUMANITIES COMMONS

Rooted in care. Driven by ideas.

November Events at the Commons

NOV 3, 3:00–4:30pm

Disability, Indigeneity, and Art: A Conversation with bailey macabre & Eliza Chandler

Critical Encounters Speaker Series

Critical Humanities Commons

Learn More

How can art open up new ways of thinking about disability, Indigeneity, and the ways we create, communicate, and care for one another? For Indigenous Disability Awareness Month, join transdisciplinary artist bailey macrabe (nêhiyaw + Ukrainian) and Disability Studies scholar Dr. Eliza Chandler (Toronto Metropolitan University) for a conversation exploring the intersections of disability, neurodivergence, Indigenous knowledge, and artistic practice.

bailey macabre (they/them) is a queer, disabled, and neurodivergent agender nêhiyaw + Ukrainian born on Snuneymuxw territory, tied to Beardys & Okemasis Cree Nation near Duck Lake, SK. Their interdisciplinary practice is varied and depends greatly on whatever their current hyperfixation is. they are an illustrator, writer, comic artist, textile worker, poet, sculptor, painter, and media artist. Much of their work focuses on themes of queer passion, Indigenous joy, intimacy, Indigenous futurism, and healing. With a penchant for bright colours, Indigenous sovereignty, and deviance in many forms, their work is multifaceted and ever changing. they have illustrated the cover of two of Jen Ferguson's novels published by HarperCollins, a children's book published by Medicine Wheel Publishing, and their work has been published by The Walrus, The Capilano Review, The Yellowhead Institute, Augur Magazine, carte blanche, and more, as well as exhibited at Nanaimo Art Gallery and The View Gallery in Nanaimo, BC, Banff Centre for Arts & Creativity, The Polygon Gallery in North Vancouver, Visions Textile Museum in San Diego, and open space in Victoria.

Dr. Eliza Chandler is an associate professor in the School of Disability Studies at Toronto Metropolitan University, where she leads a research program that animates disability arts and its connections to disability rights and justice. This research interest came into focus when, from 2014-16, she was the artistic director of Tangled Art + Disability, an organization in Toronto dedicated to showcasing disability arts and advancing accessible curatorial practice. Dr. Chandler teaches in the areas of disability arts, critical access studies, social movements, and crip technoscience and participates in a number of research projects in these areas, including co-directing the SSHRC-funded partnership project, Bodies in Translation: Activist Art, Technology, and Access to Life. Chandler regularly gives lectures on disability arts, accessible curatorial practices, and disability politics in Canada and she is a member of the Royal Society of Canada's College of New Scholars.

NOV 5, 10-11am

Far Beyond the Oceans, O Sa Mga Ibayong Dagat: Terraformations of National and Diasporic Belonging in Filipino Canada

Asian North American Feminisms Speaker Series
Zoom

Learn More

Dr. Magsumbol explores the experience of the diaspora as a group that exists in contestation with political and cultural hegemony in the nation across the long span of political time, with a specific focus on the Filipino diaspora in Canada. Developing the theory of terraformation, defined as a contested and co-constituted process of change that occurs at the political-affective terrains of belonging experienced at the scales of the nation-state and the diaspora, the talk examines the ways in which terraformation as a process occurs across three scales. Mirroring the journey of the Filipino migrant, it will begin in the Philippines, follow the diaspora to the Canadian setting, and culminate in how the diaspora challenges the terrains of diasporic and national identity within Canada as its new home nation.

Dani Magsumbol completed their doctorate at the Dept. of Politics at York University, based out of Toronto, Canada. As an academic, their research focuses on the Filipino diaspora in Canada, examining different reasons for leaving the home nation, the ways that migrant families have chosen to integrate into their new lives in Canada, and how works of literature by the diaspora about the diaspora serve to re-introduce the histories of Filipino migration into the Canadian national identity.

NOV 26, 10:00–11:00am

Sexual Positions on and off the ice: Queering Canada's Game in Heated Rivalry through an Asian Canadian Studies Lens

Asian North American Feminisms Speaker Series
Zoom

Learn More

Through a cultural analysis of the show Heated Rivalry and with insights from queer of colour theories and Asian Canadian studies, this talk examines how racial, gender and sexual differentiation shape ice hockey both within the show's internal universe as well as in its public reception as a global media phenomenon. Dr. John Paul Catungal argues that the character of Shane Hollander - variously positioned within the show as a racialized model minority, as a closeted gay athlete and as a bottom - has much to tell us about how anxieties over queerness, Asianness and hetero-masculinity continue to haunt ice hockey as a kind of synecdoche for the Canadian nation. At the same time, I ask: what openings (as it were) might Shane's pleasure and joy offer for thinking queer Asian Canadian futures beyond incorporation into the multicultural and homonormative nation?

John Paul Catungal (he/him) is Associate Professor in the Institute for Gender, Race, Sexuality and Social Justice and Co-Director of the Centre for Asian Canadian Research and Engagement at the University of British Columbia. An interdisciplinary scholar whose work sits at the nexus of feminist and queer of colour theorizing and critical human geographies, JP's scholarship and community engagement work are broadly committed to uplifting marginalized communities' organizing and cultural production efforts as practices of placemaking and knowledge production from below.

This event is co-sponsored by UBC Centre for Asian Canadian Research and Engagement (ACRE).

November Campus Events

NOV 1, 2:00pm

The Beck Lectures: Changing Migration Patterns: Long-Term Trends in International Migration in Iceland from the Late Nineteenth Century to the Present, by Ólöf Garðarsdóttir (University of Iceland)

School of Languages, Linguistics, and Culture
Clearihue A207

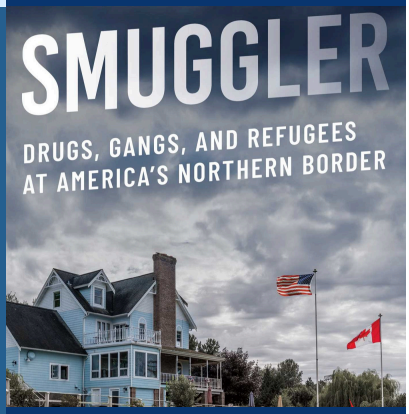

Learn More

NOV 3, 10:30am-12:00pm

BIG_Talk: Smugglers -- Drugs, Gangs, and Refugees at America's Northern Border

Centre for Global Studies
SED C168 & Zoom

Learn More

NOV 4, 11:30am-12:30pm

"Ainu Internationalism": Kaori Arai (Hokkaido University) & Michael Hathaway (Simon Fraser University)

Bandung Research Speaker Series
Clearihue B007 & Zoom

Learn More

NOV 4, 7:00p-8:30pm

August 21, 1791: The Day the Slaves Revolted, by Dr. Jason Colby

Café Historique
Oak Bay Recreation Centre, 1975 Bee Street

Learn More

NOV 4, 1:30pm-3:00pm

Digital Exhibition Launch: The Invisible Companion

Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives
Online Event

Learn More

NOV 6, 11:00am-12:30pm

Jamey Jesperson: Re-Storying Indigenous Trans Women in the "Pacific Northwest," 1814-1895

Chair in Transgender Studies
David Strong Building C122 & Zoom

Learn More

NOV 18, 11:30am-12:30pm

"Third World Anti-Imperialist Solidarity in the Imperialist Core in the Long Sixties:" Ajay Bhardwaj (Simon Fraser University)

Bandung Research Speaker Series
Clearihue B007 & Zoom

Learn More

NOV 18, 9:30-10:30am

"A Reflection on Bandung Research Directions from Indonesia": Wildan Sena Utama (Universitas Gadjah Mada)

Bandung Research Speaker Series
Clearihue B007 & Zoom

Learn More

NOV 27, 2:00pm

Dr. Eden Kinkaid -- Queer Space & Trans Life: What Can Trans Experience Teach Us About Space?

Geography
DTB B215

Learn More

We acknowledge and respect the Lək̓ʷəŋən (Songhees and Xʷsepsəm/Esquimalt) Peoples on whose territory the university stands, and the Lək̓ʷəŋən and W̱SÁNEĆ Peoples whose historical relationships with the land continue to this day.

You're receiving this message because you're subscribed to emails from Critical Humanities Commons.

Learn more about the Critical Humanities Commons

Click here to update your email preferences or unsubscribe.

3800 Finnerty Rd, Critical Humanities Commons, University of Victoria, Clearihue C305
Victoria, BC, V8P 5C2
Canada

Sent by envoke